LOGICLIBRARY CEO NAMED FINALIST IN ERNST & YOUNG 2006 ENTREPRENEUR OF THE YEAR AWARD

Greg Coticchia Among Business Leaders Recognized for Vision, Leadership and Achievement

PITTSBURGH—June 19, 2006—LogicLibrary®, the leader in design-time service-oriented architecture (SOA) governance and software reuse, today announced that CEO Greg Coticchia has again been recognized as a finalist for the prestigious Ernst & Young 2006 Entrepreneur Of The Year® (EOY) award. Winners for the Upstate New York/Western Pennsylvania region were announced on Friday, June 16 at the Hilton Hotel in Pittsburgh.

“Being named an Ernst & Young finalist for a third time is quite an honor—and it’s a reflection of the efforts and achievements of the entire LogicLibrary team,” said Coticchia. “LogicLibrary has an extraordinary group of creative and talented people. Their dedication has helped our company make a positive impact on the Pittsburgh business community and become a rising star in the software market.”

Since assuming leadership of the company in 2002, Coticchia’s management approach and extensive industry experience have helped LogicLibrary become one of the fastest-growing companies in Pittsburgh and a leader in the software industry. The Company posted a 206 percent year-over-year growth rate between 2005 and 2006. Additionally, LogicLibrary continues to expand its list of national and international clients. Global 1000 customers include businesses such as ING, Liberty Mutual, Honeywell, Vital, and TELUS. LogicLibrary has also established deep partnerships with industry giants such as Microsoft and IBM.

In addition to the Ernst & Young recognition, Coticchia has been a finalist as CEO of the Year in the Pittsburgh Technology 50 Awards for the previous three years. He holds an MBA from the University of Pittsburgh, Katz School of Business, where he was honored as a 2006 Distinguished Alumni for attaining outstanding business leadership and demonstrated community service. Coticchia holds a bachelor’s degree in industrial engineering from the University of Pittsburgh, and has completed Carnegie Mellon University’s Entrepreneurial Management Program.

The Entrepreneur of the Year Award program was created and is produced by professional services firm Ernst & Young LLP. Since its inception in 1986, the program has grown to 26 regions in the United States and 35 countries throughout the world. The awards recognize the vital contributions of entrepreneurs—the leaders who “build and sustain world-class businesses that are a testament to vision, leadership, achievement, and social responsibility.”
