LOGICLIBRARY CEO NAMED FINALIST FOR PITTSBURGH TECHNOLOGY COUNCIL'S TECH 50 CEO OF THE YEAR AWARD

Greg Coticchia Recognized for Leading Pittsburgh-based Company and Aiding Local Entrepreneurs

PITTSBURGH—November 2, 2004— LogicLibrary®, the leading provider of software asset management tools, today announced that CEO Greg Coticchia was named a finalist for the Pittsburgh Technology Council's Tech 50 CEO of the Year Award. Winners were recently honored at Carnegie Music Hall in Pittsburgh.

Since becoming CEO just over two years ago, Coticchia has led LogicLibrary to a prominent position as a nationally recognized innovator and market leader in the software industry. LogicLibrary has developed strong partnerships with the world's biggest technology companies, including IBM and Microsoft, and its blue-chip customer list includes MetLife, Charles Schwab & Co., Northwest Airlines, Thomson Financial and CNA Insurance. The Company's flagship product, Logidex, makes it possible for businesses to manage and govern software assets. In a recent move to include automated security capabilities into Logidex, Coticchia spearheaded the successful acquisition of BugScan, Inc., based in Sunnyvale, CA.

"This recognition by the Pittsburgh Technology Council is a testament to the exceptional work of our team here at LogicLibrary," said Coticchia. "As a lifelong resident of the greater Pittsburgh area, it is exciting to be a part of the region's vibrant technology renaissance. LogicLibrary is committed to building an outstanding business and making a positive, noticeable impact in southwestern Pennsylvania."

Coticchia has been working with emerging high-technology companies for over 20 years. He's also a board member and advisor of several companies, including Four Rivers Systems, NFR, ProductSoft, Congruity Technologies and DMZ2. Coticchia holds an MBA from the University of Pittsburgh, Katz School of Business, and a bachelor's degree in industrial engineering from the University of Pittsburgh. He also completed Carnegie Mellon University's Entrepreneurial Management Program and is currently expanding his business skills by pursuing a law degree from Concord University.

Since 1983, the Pittsburgh Technology Council has been the principal point of connection for companies from four primary clusters of the technology industry that are represented by a critical mass of businesses in southwestern Pennsylvania including Information Technology, Biomedical,

Advanced Manufacturing/Materials and Environmental Technology. For more information on the Council or the annual Tech 50 Award program, please visit <http://www.pghtech.org/>.
